PRESIDENT GILMAN DISCUSSES CARNEGIE INSTITUTION.

What It is and What It is Not-Study of Economic and Social Problems.

President Daniel C. Gilman of the Car negle Institution has an interesting article in "World's Work" for March, in which he explains "what the institution is and what it is not."

"A year has now passed," Dr. Gilman writes, "since the country was surprised and delighted by the announcement that Andrew Carnegie, the enlightened promoter of public libraries in this and other countries, had made a munificent gift for the endowment of the Carnegie Institution in Washington. Although the object of this foundation was clearly set forth in Mr. Caregie's letter and in the act of incorporation, the methods to be pursued were left to the trustees. The income could not be appropriated until the trustees came together in November last. Meanwhile the executive committee engaged in a very careful study of the problem; institutions were visited; leading men in many branches of scientific investigation were consulted; a voluminous correspondence was begun, and the suggestions made in the public press and in pri-vate communications were carefully considered.

"This brief statement indicates in what the Carnegie Institution has already en-gaged, namely, the bestowal of grants for research; the encouragement, by specific grant, of a select number of investigators; arrangements for printing scientific memoirs; the appaintment of 'research assistants, and preliminary inquiries respecting large undertakings to be decided in the

Reasonable Curiosity.

"There is a reasonable curiosity to know, specifically, what sort of investigations are receiving Carnegie aid. The executive committee does not think it expedient, for many reasons, to publish, at this stage of the developments, this list. It is incomplete; in many cases it is conditional. In some inreveal their work. But in due course all the particular appropriations will be communicated to the trustees, and they will doubtless cause them to be published. There is no concealment about the institution—only that legree of reserve in the preliminaries, without which results cannot be accomplished. "As examples of the aid that the Carnegie Institution has already promised to give, these cases may be mentioned: For the encouragement of biological research a liberal grant has been made to the Marine Biological Laboratory, at Wood's Hole, Mass., an admirable station, frequented every summer by a large number of naturalists. For want of the requisite pe-cuniary support, the institution has been mbarrassed; it will be reinvigorated by this grant. Two tables have been taken in Dr. Dohrn's celebrated laboratory in Naples and one in a station to be established in the Bermudas

"A grant has been made for the continuation of the 'Index Medicus,' the key to cur-rent medical science, publication having been suspended for the lack of pecuniary support.

Economic and Social Problems. "Measures have been initiated for the study of economic and social problems in the United States, a vast amount of facts having been accumulated in Washington and in the several states of the Union which are now to be examined, digested and studied by competent economists.

The examination of the unprinted ar-chives of the United States will be under-taken, with the co-operation of the officers of the American Association. "Much will be done in astronomy, and, among other things, the publication of the irs of George W. Hill is soon to be undertaken.

"Many minor grants have been devoted to geology, physics, chemistry, psychology, physiology and botany. One of the most nteresting botanical inquiries that have been set on foot is that of the vegetation of the arid regions of the United States, an inquiry quite as interesting to the economists and the legislators of this country as

t is to men of science.
Second, negatively, from what has been said, it is obvious that the Carnegie insti-tution is not a 'university' in the ordinary sense of that word. It has no faculty, it has no body of students brought together in one place. It has no systematic courses of instruction. If lectures should be given under its auspices they will probably be by specialists and to specialists, not popular lectures nor the sort of expositions required for the instruction of young pupils.

A Supplementary Agency.

"The fund is not intended for the aid of scholars in their antecedent or professional education. This must be provided for by the existing universities and colleges. Only those who are mature enough to show their powers will be aided.

"The Carnegie Institution does not prooose to build up a library nor to make collections in archaeo.ogy, ethnology and "The Carnegie Institution does not intend to do that which other institutions or indi-viduals are doing or will undertake to do. 'To sum up the whole matter, the Car-negie Institution is a supplementary agency for the purpose of strengthening scientific workers in any part of the country and alding them to carry on investigations which promise to be of importance to the

the past seven years has been pastor of the Metropolitan Baptist Church in this city, preached his farewell sermon to that congregation yesterday morning. Dr. Williams expects to leave Washington Wednesday for Jackson, Tenn., where he has accepted the pastorate of a Baptist church. Dr. Williams took his text yesterday morning from 1st Thesealonians, 2:19. He gave a review of the results accomplished in the Metropolitan Church during his term of service there and urged the members of the church to work zealously for greater things in the future. Dr. Williams was born in Tennessee and the first fifteen years of his ministry was in that state. He had charge of a church in Nashville for ten years and a church in Bristol for five years. From this latter pastorate he came to Washington in 1896. He has been in poor health for several months past, and, it is stated, this fact is cision to return to Tennessee.

Alleged Wanton Cruelty.

The wanton cruelty of some visitor from this city who went to Alexandria Monday last to attend the Washington birthday celebration there came to light after the crowd had left, and if the officers of the ferry line could catch up with the perpetrators of the deed the laying on or hands would be violent.

On the wharf at Alexandria are two cats, which are great favorites with the employes and regular passengers of the line. They are sportive, playful little animals and were friendly with everything bu: dogs, and the appearance of a canine on the wharf was a signal for a fight, in which the cats always came out victorious.

After the celebration, when the wharf watchman called the cats to feed them. they did not answer, as they had previous-ly, and a hunt was made for them, and they were at last found hidden under a pile of freight, minus their tails. The cuts were fresh and looked as if they had been made with a sharp knife or razor. 'The injured parts of the animals have healed but in the breasts of the ferry men there exists a deep desire for vengeance, and they are making every effort to find who did the cutting.

FUNCTION GIVEN BY PLATE PRINTERS' UNION, NO. 2.

Addresses by Mr. Samuel Gompers, Capt. W. M. Meredith and Others

That absolute harmony which has always characterized the relations between the government officials and the plate printers at the bureau of engraving and printing was specially manifested wast was styled a "smoke talk," held in the Washington Light Infantry Armory Hall Saturday evening, under the auspices of the Washington Plate Printers' Union, No. 2, of the American Federation of Labor.

Artisans, labor leaders of national promnence, government officials and men identiled with the professional world, numbering more than six hundred, were gathered around the festive board, and they gave their undivided attention to the remarks of the speakers, all of whom alluded most eulogistically to labor unionism and the benefits derived therefrom.

Mr. Henry Szegedy, president of the union, served as toastmaster and delivered the opening address, explaining the pur-poses for which the function had been arranged and referring to the achievements of the organization. Mr. Samuel Gompers, president of the American Federation of Labor, who chartered a special train to bring him to this city from New York in order to attend the "smoke talk," was the principal speaker. As he arose to address the assemblage great enthusiasm prevailed and it was several minutes before quiet was restored

Labor Unionism Stands for Peace. During the course of his remarks Mr. Gompers said that labor unionism stands for peace in industry. He said that he wants labor organized in such a way as to command the respect of the employer, and added that both employe and employer should each have the interests and welfare of the other at heart, expressing the hope hat he would see the day when such feeling would universally prevail.

After referring to the anthracite coal strike of recent date, President Gompers declared that the republic of the United States stands as a living protest against the sovereignty of kings, as does organized labor against imperialism in industry. The speaker spoke of legislation bearing on la-bor in Congress, and concluded by saying that the spirit of unionism prevailed at the time of the ever-memorable revolutionary war, recalling that the Declaration of Inence was framed in the Carpenters' Union Hall in Philadelphia

CATHOLIC MISSION OPENED.

Services at St. Patrick's Church Yesterday Morning.

The mission at St. Patrick's Church was opened vesterday morning at the 11 o'clock mass with solemn and impressive services. Rev. John Gaynor was the celebrant of the mass, and the Rev. Walter Elliott, a Catholic missionary, preached on "The Nature and Utility of a Mission." He outlined in detail the various classes of persons to whom a mission is directed, and made a forcible appeal to the congregation to profit by the spiritual opportunities offered. The first week of the mission will be devoted to the women of the congregation; the services will be as follows: Masses at 6, 7 and 9 o'clock in the morning, with an instruction following the 7 and 9 o'clock masses. In the evening at 7:30 o'clock one of the missionary fathers will answer questions pertaining to religious matters pro-posed by members of the congregation, or by others who may be interested. This is said to be a new feature in the conduct of Catholic missions, and it has for its object the elucidation of the doctrine and practice of that church. Following this, the regular evening mission sermon will be preached by Rev. Father Elliott. The mission exercises for the women will close next Sunday at the 11 o'clock mass, when Father Elliott will preach, taking for the theme of his discourse the "Papal Next Sunday evening at 7:30 o'clock a mission will be formally opened for the men

Gunner Simon Jacobs to Go Before Court-Martial.

The Secretary of the Navy has ordered a court-martial to convene at the Washington navy yard for the trial of Gunner Simon Jacobs of the navy on charges growing out of an accident to a four-inch rapid-fire gun at the proving grounds, Indian Head, Md., a few days ago. Gunner Jacobs was in charge of the gun, and, it is alleged, was responsible for the use of improper ammunition in the gun, with the result that the discharge damaged the gun seriously and injured several members of the crew.

The court is composed of ordnance experts, as follows: Captain Edwin C. Pen-dieton, Commander T. H. Stevens, Lieutenant Commander William Braunersreuther, Lieutenant Commander J. J. Knapp, Lieu-tenant H. P. Jones and Lieutenant D. H. McDougal. The judge advocate of the court has not yet been announced.
